CHEANEY CASE NEXT.

Commonwealth Docket Will Probably Be Finished this Week.

The case of the Commonwealth against John Cheaney, under an indictment charging willful murder, in the killing of Maud Ellis, is set for trial today and will likely be called this morning. Cheaney is accused of shooting and killing the woman near the southern limits of the city one night during Christmas week. An indictment was returned by the grand jury early in March and the case was set for the twenditeth day of the term, which is today. 'Another bill was returned against Cheaney at the same time, charging him with having maliciously shot and wounded Duncan Veach, the indictment for murder will be disposed of first. The trial will probably consume three or four days, as there are a number of witnesses and there will be several speeches. Messrs. John Stites, J. T. Hanbery and Judge C. H. Bush have been appointed to represent the defendant.

Charles Burris, the negro who shot and killed his wife/Carrie Burris, in a restaurnat at Pembyok one night last fall, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter, and his punishment was fixed at twentyone years in the penitentiary. The cases was given to the jury Friday at noon and the verdict was returned at 9:30 Saturday morning. Burris was indicted for murder. He was given the extreme penalty for manslaughter.

Jim Williams and Archie Hampton, both colored, charged with malicious-tyl throwing into a railroad car with indictment against. He quartet, charging them with forcibly breaking and entering a railroad car with intent to steal, was dismissed.

Isaac N. Oxowan was granted a divorce from his wife, Lou Amn Cowan, Jaks and Armstrong nay. The town was the man and the work was taken. USE SMOKELESS SOFT COAL

In Industry, Newly-Invented Fur-nace Proves a Big Boon-Noth-ing for the Household.

The disfigurement from soft coal is needless, it is asserted, in view of a modern invention which has made bitminions cond absolutely smokeless. As yet there has been no satisfactory furnace invented for household use, but for industrial uses on a large scale there are smokeless soft coal furnaces made, the prices ranging from a few hundred dollars to $1,500. One firm has sold more than 8,000 smokeless furnaces and is now shipping many orders to than 8,000 smokeless furnaces and is now shipping many orders to Japan. Bayers have decided that the saving in cost of fuel offsets the high first cost of the furnaces. But not only is bituminous coal nominally only half the price of anthracite, but the successful in-vention provides for the burning of coal with the minimum of Everyone knows that coa smoke is carbon which has not been consumed; that is, wasted coal which has been set free while been considered to the coal which has been set free while the mass is heating. One form of smoke consumer is a mechanical stoker, which feeds the coal is slowly at the edge of the fire, foreing whatever smoke rises to pass the length of the fire box before the glowing furnace. The accompaniment of the hot air blast secures almost complete combustion. Another system by reversing the draughts sends the gascous smoke down through the fire, the blue flames playing down through the grate instead of up. The fire does not burn down, for attrally the fresh coal goes in on top, but all the gases descend. naturany the tress coal goes in top, but all the gases descend below the grate is another grate to which the smaller pieces of half consumed coal drop. What little gas escapes is burned in the rouring passage between the two white hot grates.

It has been computed that at the present rate of consumption the anthracite coal supply cannot last longer than 80 years.

But the supply of bituminous coal is practically unlimited. Ordinarily in New York it is about half the price of hard coal. The United States government, using down draught furnaces of 1,100 horse power in New York city, saves yearly nearly $2,000 by burning soft coal. It has besides 75 per contract of the coal and from 10 to 15 per cent, in the coal and from 10 to 15 per cent, in crease in the use of standards which we have a permy contract of the coal and from 10 to 15 per cent, in crease in the use of standards which settle there has been a great increase in the use of standards which settle there has been a great permy contract. The nineteenth annual report of the Bureau of Animal Industry (1902) presents some interesting facts regarding the magnitude of the poutry industry in the United States. The report considers only poultry and eggs produced on farms and omits the vast quantities produced in villages and cities.

The report considers only poultry business, and considered poultry and eggs produced on farms and omits the vast quantities produced in villages and cities.

Government statistics are always based upon reports gathered January 1st. The production of eggs upon the farms can be readily approximated, annual production of poultry cannot be estimated, for the reason that during the year millions of fowls are hatched and consumed, and never enter into the estimate. The total number of fowls on farms, as given in the census, was some supported. The production of poultry cannot be estimated. The total number of fowls on farms, as given in the census, was seven in the census was not considered poultry business, and considered poultry and of the most valuable in connection with farming.

TEMPERANCE MEASURE.

Some Features of the County Unit Bill.

All counties, with the exception of those containing cities of the first four classes, must vote as units on local option questions.

Cities of first four classes and the counties outside these cities made separate units.

If a county goes "dry," no predict in that county and be "wet."

On the other hand, if a county votes "wet," any precinct in that county, which previous to the election was "dry," shall remain "dry," of the same rule applies as well to cities of the first four classes.

There are at present 119 counties

entes of the first four classes.
There are at present 119 counties in the State. Sixty-eight are local option. The temperance element claims that under the bill passed yesterday twenty-seven more will be added to their column, and that they have a great chance to corry other counties.

THE TREE'S INCLINED

How is it with the young people of your household? Are they saving money? Have they learned to appreciate the value of the dollar? Are you endeavoring to instillinto their minds correct ideas concerning thrift and economy? Are you seeking the opportunity to "bend the twig?" Would you like to listen to a plain suggestion? If so, here it is:

Send the Young Folks to the

with the first spare dollar that comes into their hands. The next dollar should be treated in like manner, and the practice so continued until a fixed habit of saving has been established. A goodly bank account will soon result, the young folks will get an inkling of the ways of business, and, being thus "inclined," are likely to always glad to assist young folks in their efforts to SAVE MONEY.
